Subject: Data Protection Bill

Morning,

I would like the bill to look into current practice of [redacted]. The company has all the Singaporeans' names, addresses and telephone numbers listed on their directory. We have to pay a fee to have our own information opted out from the listing. In the first place, the company has not sorted our permission to print our private contact information on [redacted].

The company has used our information to compile a directory, thereby getting their revenue by having advertisements on these directories. We suffered nuisance calls from property agents consistently, who got our information from the directory.

I hope the coming implementation of Data Protection Bill can stop such unethical practice.

Regards,
Lui W. F. (Ms)
