Para	Feedback/Comments
Para 24(2b)	It was stated that an individual may request an organization to correct an error or omission in the personal data that is about the individual and in the custody of the organization. Unless the organization is satisfied on reasonable grounds that a correction shall not be made, the organization is expected to (a) correct the personal data as soon as practicable; and (b) send the corrected data to (i) every organization to which the personal data was disclosed within a year before the date the correction was made; or (ii) if the individual so requests, only to specific organizations to which the personal data was disclosed by the organization within a year before the date the correction was made. We are of the view that it would be unreasonable to expect the organization to perform the operationally onerous task of updating third party organizations to which the data had been disclosed owing to the error or omission of the individual.
